

ARCHITECTS IN SCHOOLS CENTRAL OREGON 2009-2010

Attention architects, intern architects, landscape designers, landscape architects, or interior designers!

... Consider sharing your passion and professional skills with the community through the Architects in Schools (AiS) program.

Architects in Schools is a unique program providing elementary schools the opportunity to work with practicing professional architects and designers in curriculum-based activities. The Architecture Foundation of Oregon (AFO) coordinates the formation of exciting partnerships between architects and area schools.

Commitment:

Architects in Schools is open to grades 3 through 5 and is offered to schools at no charge. Architect commitment to the program usually totals approximately 20 hours between January and April as follows:

- 12 hours in the classroom (approximately two hours per week over a six-week period that works with the architect's schedule)
- 8 hours of orientation, including pre-planning time with teachers, and
- Up to 2 additional hours of "floating time"

Orientation:

There is no charge for participation, but teachers and architects are required to attend an orientation session held on Saturday, February 6, 2010 (in Bend). Architects may receive Continuing Education credit or IDP credits for completion of the entire program. All participants receive a copy of the comprehensive curriculum, Architecture as a Basic Curriculum Builder.

Exhibit for Students:

Architects in Schools' annual culminating event offers participating students the opportunity to display their work in an exhibit at the close of the school year. By tradition, the exhibit opening includes a reception for Architects in Schools participants.

Architect application submissions to participate in the '09-'10 school year must be received or postmarked no later than Friday, October 30, 2009. For more information, contact Kim Ruthardt Knowles, 503/317.7537 or kim_ais@msn.com. Applicants will be notified of participation status in early December 2009.
