

Architects in Schools

Bring Design to Elementary Schools Across Oregon

Held annually during the school year

The Architects in Schools program introduces the youngest Oregonians to the power and possibilities of design with the end goal of creating lifelong learners and critical thinkers who have a voice in their community. This is AFO's longest running program.

Administered by AFO since 2003, the program has grown from annually serving 800 students to currently serving more than 5,000 third through fifth grade students in the Portland metropolitan area, Salem, Eugene, Central, Eastern, Southern and Coastal Oregon.

Architects in Schools delivers arts programming, environmental understanding, awareness of cultural links to history, understanding responsibility to the natural environment, career awareness and communication skills – all through the principles and practices of architecture and design.
