

Scholars Reception

Honor AFO's Scholarship Recipients

Held annually during the spring

Since 1998, AFO has awarded scholarships to architecture students, many of whom now practice in the Northwest and around the world. AFO administers four scholarships: Hatfield Architectural Award for architecture students who express commitment to community service; William Hart Scholarship for architecture students who identify as Black, Indigenous, and/or a person of color; PCC Architecture & Interior Design Scholarship for first-generation Portland Community College students; and the Tsagaglalal (She Who Watches) Scholarship for Native American, Alaskan Native, and Hawaiian Native art or architecture students at Portland State University.

Each year, AFO introduces scholarship award recipients during a reception event. Over 150 leaders in the design and building industry gather to recognize these achievements and to hear from an inspiring featured speaker.

The goals of this reception are to increase the visibility of this scholarship program, institute a higher annual monetary award, provide networking opportunities for scholarship recipients and finalists, and provide inspiring stories of how leaders in the built environment are contributing to the community.
