

THE VAN EVERA BAILEY FELLOWSHIP

Architecture Foundation of Oregon & Oregon Community Foundation

Invitation for Proposals

August 2023

Introduction

The Van Evera Bailey Fellowship exists to inspire design and building professionals to deepen their understanding of design's role in creating an Oregon where everyone can thrive.

This Fellowship is an opportunity for professionals to examine not only what they think, but how they think. For many, the demands of our careers and the market do not encourage thoughtful reflection on the more nuanced impact of architecture in our daily lives. The Van Evera Bailey fellowship is an investment in an ongoing dialogue with the community of professionals responsible for our built environment. Fellows return the investment through work that makes a lasting contribution to the art and practice of architecture.

The Architecture Foundation of Oregon (AFO) uses a JEDI-informed process in all our programs to fulfill our equity goals. We believe that architecture and the built environment can address our most challenging problems, and that Oregon is stronger when more people from diverse backgrounds participate in designing the places that shape our world. We believe that design should consider diverse points of view, and reflect these views, in a built environment that provides access and equity for all.

Overview

Since 2001, AFO has partnered with The Van Evera and Janet M. Bailey Fund of Oregon Community Foundation (OCF) in awarding the now $25,000 annual Van Evera Bailey Fellowship to advance the professional development of design and building professionals, encouraging greater contributions to their profession and their community.

Fellowship projects follow a variety of paths. The most compelling projects propose work that can have an impact on communities as well as individual professionals. Examples of eligible activities include, but are not limited to:

- Sabbaticals for study of innovative architectural design to be applied in Oregon
- Teaching engagements that promise enhancement of the applicant's and students' creativity in architectural design
- Collaborations between architects and others to implement new projects
- Preparation of public education projects
- Research and writing on a specific design-related topic

Eligibility

Eligibility for the Fellowship is flexible. Favorable emphasis will be given to applicants based in Oregon who are at a point of inflection in their career. The intention of the Fellowship is to provide time for creativity, reflection and a pursuit of deeper understanding of ideas that will result in lasting value to the applicant, the profession and the greater community.

The Fellowship is intended to promote dissemination and application of ideas. Support may be requested for stipends, travel, lodging, materials, and other relevant needs. Projects must include follow-up activities that share the results of the Fellowship with the professional community and general public. Fellows will be asked to provide information to document their experience. At the end of the Fellowship, AFO and the Fellow will collaborate on a short presentation highlighting their work and findings at the annual Fellowship Reception in the year following the Fellowship completion.

Applicants may apply jointly for a Van Evera Bailey Fellowship. For example, if an architect and an urban planner see potential for an innovative project that requires unusual research, they might apply jointly for stipends or support of travel and other expenses in order to examine relevant work in other communities, states, or countries; consult with professional peers and leading thinkers; formulate detailed plans; and produce articles or public education programs.

Current members of the board of AFO are not eligible to apply or to receive Fellowship funds indirectly as a partner in a proposed project.

Application Requirements

Applicants submit proposals electronically through the online platform Submittable. You will be asked to make a free account, which will allow you to save drafts as you work through the application and allow you to access your submitted application at any time.

Proposal Application Form: bit.ly/vebfellowship2024

1. Greatest scoring weight will be given to the application essay prompts outlined below:

- Describe your proposed project and a clearly articulated thesis statement that will guide and frame your work. (500 word limit)
- Explain the impact of the project on the applicant, the building profession and the communities served. Include the documented need to be addressed by the Fellowship. (250 word limit)
- Describe any challenges you feel you might face. (250 word limit)
- Explain your experience and qualifications to address the topic at hand - including but not limited to your academic, civic, professional, and lived experience. (250 word limit)
- Describe how you will make your project results available to the public for the benefit of the professional community. Examples: Posting your results on your personal or professional website, creating a public exhibition, including your fellowship story in a public-facing final project. Note that your AFO Fellowship Reception presentation can fulfill this requirement. (250 word limit)
- Explain or list your schedule/timetable/work plan for the completion of the project.

2. Additional Attachments:

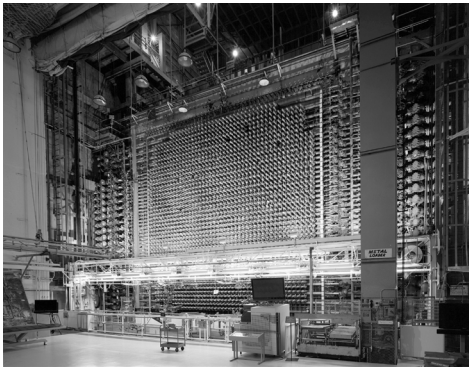

- Resume of the applicant(s).
- Itemized budget for the entire Fellowship. If other sources of support will be used to complement Fellowship support, please identify them and whether they have been secured. IMPORTANT NOTE: The award of a VEB Fellowship is taxable income. Applicants must plan and budget accordingly.
- Two to three letters of support from a variety of perspectives indicating why the proposed Fellowship is important to the professional community. Examples: Other design professionals, architectural organizations, or representatives of other fields. References should address personal capabilities of the applicant and value of the project.
- Brief design portfolio of materials that illuminate the applicant's work and its relevance to the proposed project.

Process and Timetable

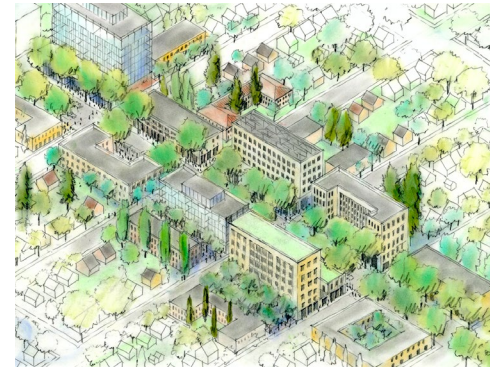

Applications will be reviewed by a committee of design and building professionals in collaboration with OCF and AFO. Applicants may be asked to submit further information or to speak with representatives of OCF and AFO to clarify their proposals. The review committee will make recommendations to the board of Oregon Community Foundation. OCF reserves the right to approve Fellowships at its sole discretion. The VEB Fellowship will be awarded by OCF through the Architecture Foundation of Oregon and will be announced publicly by December with a Fellowship Reception hosted by AFO in early 2024. The year-long Fellowship period begins January 1 of 2024.
